

Education Sessions

"Archaeology is Rubbish!"

This session is a brilliant introduction to archaeology, set inside a fine example of standing archaeology (Southchurch Hall)

The session begins with an exploration of the concepts of archaeology, including some of the pitfalls of interpretation, and ends with the children being able to handle archaeological finds from the area.

This is a workshop format with children working in groups and presenting their findings to the class. This session can also complement Central Museum's permanent collection of archaeological finds.
